casiday showcases full translations of evagrius ponticus letters and notes and presents an accurate and refreshingly approachable introduction to this early church father

this book presents evagrius theology in its own terms informed by a detailed study of the monk's life writings and evolving legacy in his chapters on prayer evagrius shows the dynamic connections between on one side the images in the mind of the man who wants to pray and on the other the passions and usual attitudes of mind and heart it is only when images in the mind and the spirit are fully adapted in the light of god that a man's attitudes and activities advance to their full achievement in perfect harmony these images are processed and purified by contemplation of the divine light reflected in the soul indeed a man can't be purified from the outside purification and the rectification of his judgment and conduct are the work god accomplishes in him in an intimate mutual relationship in this treatise evagrius constantly refers to the holy scriptures from amazon.com evagrius often neglected commentaries on scripture are discussed together with his better known works in order to present a more balanced picture of the monk and his model of the spiritual life as a rhythm back and forth between the poles of image-filled prayer and imageless wordless pure prayer evagrius of pontus c. 345-399 was one of the most prominent figures among the monks of the desert settlements of Nitria, Sketis and Kellia in lower Egypt through the course of his ascetic writings he formulated a systematic presentation of the teaching of the semi-eremitic monks of these settlements the works of evagrius had a profound influence on eastern orthodox monastic teaching and passed to the west through the writings of John Cassian c. 365-435 this is the first complete English translation of evagrius' Greek ascetic writings based on modern critical editions where available and where they are not on collations of the principal manuscripts two appendices provide variant readings for the Greek texts and the complete text of the long recension of Eulogios the translations are accompanied by a commentary to guide the reader through the intricacies of Evagrian thought by offering explanatory comments and references to other Evagrian texts and relevant scholarly literature finally detailed indexes are provided to allow the reader to identify and study the numerous themes of Evagrian teaching this latest volume in the Ancient Christian Writers series provides an original English translation of the text known as Ad Monachos by evagrius ponticus 345-399 the ancient text is a collection of 137 proverbs composed by evagrius imitating a biblical style and often intentionally enigmatic the translation is made with a view toward catching the biblical echoes in addition an English equivalent of the pleasing Greek rhythms is created in order to facilitate memorization and meditation at first glance the 137 proverbs may strike the reader as being haphazardly joined together for someone unfamiliar with evagrius' thought and language some of the proverbs would seem especially bland others impossibly mysterious and yet this is a text whose value and interest can only be measured accurately once a key to reading it is discovered and actually used to unlock the very rich levels of meaning in each of its proverbs this is accomplished in Jeremy Driscoll's extensive commentary book jacket title summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc all rights reserved
